

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved our time at home by ending annoying calls during dinner or while we are taking a nap or sleeping in on Saturday's. I also save money because I was able to discontinue the privacy feature offered by my telephone company. I used to receive approx 15-20 "unknown" callers each day. I now receive about 3 a week.

Daily we get spammed, we get junk mail, and we were getting sales calls. Our life is busy enough without all this extra baggage to steal away precious moments with our children, gaining rest, or contemplating our life (prayer). Please don't add more chaos to our lives by giving the telemarketers back their venue into our homes!

I will pray the you will consider the right to every citizens privacy versus the right of a company to sell their goods.

Thanks, Joan Webber
